Aims and Scope

Journal of Applied Research in Water and Wastewater (JARWW) is an open access online journal and completely free-of-charge publishes refereed, original research papers on all aspects of technology of water and wastewater worldwide. A broad outline of the journal's scope includes:

- Recent developments on physical, chemical, and biological treatment processes for drinking water and wastewater (agricultural, municipal, industrial).
- Wastewater treatment processes and energy generation.
- Water conservation, wastewater minimization, recycle and reuse.
- Mathematical modeling and simulation of engineered and natural, environmental water and wastewater processes and systems.
- Theoretical, experimental and computational hydraulics and fluid mechanics in various fields of application (rivers, coasts, environment, structures and industrial flows).
- Numerical methods in fluid dynamics and their applications to the aeronautics, hydrodynamics, environmental, and power and process fields.
- Important developments in all aspects of water quality management and pollution control.
- Water quality assessment and monitoring for point and non-point pollution.
- Effects and impacts of pollution on rivers, lakes, groundwater and marine waters.
- Groundwater remediation, groundwater and surface water management.
- Water and wastewater-related public health, environmental exposure analysis and risk assessment.
